1. There is available in the CIA Library a photocopy in Italian of the text of a poster published in Italy in connection with an anti-Communist poster manifestation promoted by the Alliance of Russian Peoples Against Communism in all Western European countries on 1 May 1955.
2. The Alliance of Russian Peoples Against Communism is an organization of Russian emigres, mainly former officers and troops of General Andrei Vlassov, which has its headquarters in Munich.
3. Gleb Akimov, one of the leaders of the Alliance, was sent to Rome to seek aid for printing and affixing anti-Communist posters. After the Christian Democratic Party had refused assistance, Akimov contacted Pietro Caporilli, Political Director of the anti-Communist newspaper, Il Carroccio, who agreed to assume the responsibility for publishing and disseminating the posters.
